

Joshua Rodgers is a native of Memphis, TN. He received his undergraduate degree in Political Science from Morehouse College, an MPA from Arkansas State University, and an MPP from State University.

Joshua is a well-rounded real estate professional. He currently works as a Strategic Planning and Implementation Analyst with a focus on higher education. Prior to this role, Joshua worked in the world of affordable housing with Habitat for Humanity International as a Real Estate and Finance Paralegal. In that role, he was responsible for managing affiliate real estate portfolios and ensured state and federal housing compliance.

Joshua is the curator of a weekly blog called the J Word. It's a cultural think piece that provides a unique perspective on current events through the lens of faith, self-care, and social responsibility.

Sought after by a wide range of organizations, Joshua is an accomplished public speaker offering keen insight on faith, leadership, and self-care. Joshua is a member of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, Inc. and serves as ministerial director in his local church – All Nations Worship Assembly-Atlanta

Joshua is married to Asha Rodgers, and they live in the Atlanta Metropolitan Area with their two sons, Joshua, II, and Jayden Alexander.